PISCALL

s-Come, comrades dear, B.B., 136: He lives, B.B., 138. O glorious hope of perfect love! It lifts me up to things above, It bears on eagles' wings; It gives my ravished soul a taste,
And makes me for some moments With Jesus, priests, and kings.

Rejoicing now in earnest hope, Rejoicing now in earnest hope,
I stand, and from the mountain top
See all the land below;
Rivers of milk and honey rise,
And all the fruits of Paradise
In endless plenty grow.

A land of corn, and wine, and oil, Favoured with God's peculiar smile, With every blessing blest; There dwells the Lord our Righteousness,
And keeps His own in perfect peace
And everlasting rest.

Now, O my Jesus, bring me in!
Cast out Thy foces: the inbred sin,
The carnal mind, remove;
The purehase of Thy death divide:
Gve me, wth all the Sanctified,
The heritage of love!

Tune-Canaan, bright Canaan, B.E.,

Oh, what hath Jesus bought for me?
A Free and I'nll Salvation!
He groaned and died upon the tree, To give me Full Saluntian To give me Full Salvation.

I'm happy now both night and day,
Since I gained Full Salvation;

No matter what the world may say,
I'll tell of Full Salvation.

CHORIZE Salvation! Salvation— A Free and Full Salvation! My Saviour died upon the tree To give me Full Salvation!

Oh, come and get your sins forgiven, And have a Full Salvation; You cannot hope to go to Heaven, Without a Full Salvation. We'll march and sing and tell the

THE CLUTCHING HAND-AS

THE GREAT VICTORY!

Substance of an Impressive and Moving Address, in Connection with the Recent Brilliant National Demonstration at Clapton, London, England, Delivered by THE GENERAL

POWERS AND PRINCIPLES THAT WILL TRANSFORM HUMAN LIVES_IESUS CHRIST THE WORLD'S SAVIOUR

THINK you will agree with me that this fice meeting is significant in a remarkable way of many aspects of the national life of our people he this sime. Here are onthered with us those who in some way represent the religious forces at work amongst us-the philanthropie work which is going forward, the educational efforts which are being made, the municipat, the military, the gaval authorities, and representatives also of that wider interest which is enceially accognited with the Empire and the affied nations. I feel it is significant, too, that such a representative gathering should be assembled, if only for a short moment, under the Banner of The Satuation Army.

STIRRING FOR GOOD

Looking at you thus I feel if you will let me say so, that you are a symbol of a great naional awakening which the war has undoubtedly brought about amongst our people. There is no doubt there are many directions in which that awakening may proceed further with great advantage, while in others we have not yet seen such an armusing of the public conscience and such a turning to God as some of us had hoped for. But, nevertheless, there is a great stirring for good amongst our people. Now, when I say that I am thinking chiefly of this: that the Nation seems to have discovered powers and principles within itself of which before it had only a very dim perception, or a very doubtful hope. Let me remind you of one or two.

First, there is the awakening to the power and strength which abide in a great purpose, I think perhaps nothing has been more wonderfut in this war than the unity which it has brought about amoogst all parties, and the subordination of so many of the interests which before the war broke out were thought to be dominant interests.

WONDERFILLY DISCOVERED

I say, further, the nation has discovered in a wonderful way the power of some forces within itself of which before it had not thought very much. There has been a great arousing as to the value of religion. In my judgment there has never been any great enterprise in the world's history in which religion has played so wonderful a part, I know quite well the melan-choly condition of many of our people-how sad has been the experience of many of the splendid pnen when have bonte up for this great struggle? yef, I say, when you come to look at the roots of haction, and swarch out the sources much. There has been a great arousing as to from which devotion and sacrifice spring, there has probably never been a great strain put upon any people to which there has been such a response before the Bar of God.

FELT GOD WANTED THEM

As for The Salvation Army, I believe that in thousands-nay, I think I might add in tens of thousands-of cases, the men have taken up the great struggie and gone out with their lives in their hands because they felt God wanted them to do it; goue forth after prayer and waiting on Him in days and nights of agony; gone out with His help and desiring His blessing. And I feel also that the Nation has found in another direcalso that the Nation has found in another direc-tion unexpected resources in the service and devotion of its women. The Salvation Army has a fine record in this, for we have always held that woman's service was as valuable as that of man's in the scheme of life, and that this is God's man's in the scheme of inc, and that just is Gous plan. And, now this war has shown as perhaps nothing else could have shown what the force and power of women's skill and women's devo-tion and women's sacrifice have been. So I stand here to-day and I raise my hat, I take off my shoes on the ground which I feel has been made holy by the love and service and devotion of the mothers and sisters of our people.

Also, we have remembered as a nation some of the victories of the past. They have been called to mind, and they have beloed us.

And then I think you will agree with me that the nation has seen in a new way the power of sacrifice for a future gain. There never has been such a willing pouring out of treasure, oever such a willing giving up of the life of our people The nation has seen in a marveltous way the power of sacrifice to cleanse its thoughts and to lift it's hopes to higher and nobler things. I have been deeply impressed in moving about the country by the scenes I have witnessed at the railway stations. It is often my lot to be io one or other of the great termini in the midnight hour. I see the sights there-some melancholy sights, enough to break a good man's heart when he witnesses them. But many sights also that bring home to me the depth, the magnificence, of the sacrifice our people are making,

FAITH IN TRIUMPH

Again, we see here an example of the power of faith in victory. From the King down-you know the King has a part to play, and you have a King who has a heart (you ought to pray for him that he may be sustained and kept in the part he has undertaken)—it has been the hope of their faith in ultimate triumph that has sustained our prople.

Now, if I had time I might play the part of a glorified fortune-tetter, as it were, and look at "the hands" of the concern and "tell" what the prospects are. But that is not my object in standing here; it is rather this; to ask you whether there may not he some of the same powers to be found in the individual that have been found in the Nation? Would not a great purpose give strength to accomplish something in your lives here to-day? If there should come into your soul the ambition for righteousness by your life, if you were to dedicate yourself to that purpose, sour the ambition for rigineousness by your-inc, if you were to dedicate yourself to that purpose, would not that be a mighty strength for you and help you to turn away from the petty and the selfish and the narrow and devote yourself to schish and the narrow and devote yourself to some great thing for the blessing of others? Was not this one of the great facis of Jesus Christ's life? Was it not said of Him, that "He endured the Cross and despised the shane, looking for the glory which was to be revealed"?

WILL TO VICTORY

May I not say, also, as I said of the Nation, May 1 not say, also, as 1 and 01 the avation, that there are forces in you that you have not thought much of? Especially do I mean your will. Oh, here is one of the great facts in this conflict! The will of the German nation, it is said, is to rictory, and the answer always is that the will of the British nation is to victory; and the will do the British nation is to victory; and the will be decreased as the will be decreased as the will be decreased as the will be decreased. the will of the British nation is to velery; and what sustains the German nation is this will to victory, and what will sustain the British nation, and the Japanese nation, and the French nation is the will to victory. And it is true. Oh, if your will were to come over on to the side of righteousness against your personal foe; if you were to say, "I will never again bow willingly to the dominion of what is evd, of what is false, of what is impure, of what is u chaste, of what is unisi".

I do not know you, or very little of you. It may, with one, be strong drink, or it may be some one content passion; it may be some leve of what is base, it may be some hate of what is good, or the wronging of some weak woman who has come into your power; or it may be with you the come into your power; or it may be with you the despising of the things of God. I say, whatever it is, if you will only stand upright, as the Scripe ture we send said and fight against it you shall find in vourself resources of which you knew yery little, which will come to your help.

POWER OF SACRIFICE

And then I said the power of sacrifice i mighty in the Nation. Would not it be so in you? If some within the sound of my voice toyou? If some within the sound of my road day were to say that pleasure shall go, and this gain shall he given up, and that ambition he abandoned and that sin shall be eat off then will begin the grand conquest of yourself, and having conquered yourself, alt other conquests will be open before you. I know some of you have already made sacrifices for the Nation save already made saterness for the Actions some of your have given up hoys, some fave giveo your husbands, some have given your for-ers, some of you men have given something precious as life itself. I know! I praise 66d for it! I honour you for it! But you reme what Edith Cavell said when going to her death: what Edith Cavell said when going to her weath.
"I see patriotism is not enough—to love my country and sacrifice myself for my country—must have something higher than that; I love my God and sacrifice for my God." If you will call that power out, you shall find in you sacrifice the path to conquest; and faith and lav shall follow in its train.

And I spoke of the force of faith in the "Ah, we shall win!" It is in my heart to fell you the weakest of you, no matter what the for be, or have done—your selfishness, your un your cold, irresponsive nature, your weak, wo bling will—there is victory for your by cleansing of the Blood of Jesus you shall, more than conqueror.

VICTORY OVER SELF

My heart goes out to you all. I speak to.s Salvationists here; I speak to some of you are going away, to some of you just come with the blood-mark on you. We are glad see you. I say it to the nurses here who struggling so finely to do all they can. I say those representing the Municipal Authorities the Authorities of the Nation-we are an ord the Authorities of the Nation—we are an order mation and admire those set in authority over—and F say to these friends of ours from lipture and Japan—Oh, I say to you all—this is great victory; the victory over yourselves! Nation is confident of victory. Yes, and the war there will be great victories—Victory over many dreate evil that surround as; in the drink traffic and the miserable poverty at the sweating and horride crime that sales abspectively under which hundreds of the own of the property to the sweating the property to the sweating the property to the sweating the property to you—the victory over yourself, triumph over your own foe; that is the groonquest.

The announcement in the press of the renewed bombardment of Rheims recalls the fact that our hrave comrades, Adjutant Carrell hrave comrades, Adjalant Carrill, and few lieutenan, are still compageously continuing their works among the inhabitants of the shell-smashed town. News from the place itself is non-existent, but Colonil Kitching, when in Paris recently, met the Adjirant, who was then on furlough, but who since has received permission from the military authorities to return to Rheims.

In spite of the tremendous shelling-in one night, says the Colonel. 3,000 shells were thrown in and over the city—the horrid, deadly fumes from asphyxiating shells and all the other hundred and one terrors of war, our coursales still cling to their gradually—diminishing flock of people, cheering, comforting, feet-ing, and protecting them. The sacti-tice of these heroic women will make, a thrilling page of history after the war. The Lord protect them!

Owing to various reasons, among them the fact that, on account of war conditions, it has not leen found possible to hold Training Sessions recently, there is a shortage of Officers in France, just at a time of Omeers in France, just at a time when opportunity for extending The Army's Work is greater than ever, before. The feeling in that country, was probably never so good for any of the allied peoples as now, and at the same time appreciation of The Army's Work, and readiness to listen to the message of Salvation, abound. Thus, Officers from Canada would, it is thought, have not a little in their favour, and an excellent opportunity for winning souls and extending the Kingdom of God.

CADETS COMMISSIONED AND OFFICERS PROMOTED

UR cabled message of last week spoke of the enthusiastic reception given to Commisand Brigadier Bettridge, on their arrival at St. John's on the Thurs-day afternoon for the Officers' ouncus. In the evening after a lengthy procession through the principal streets, the Citadel was erowded for the first indoor gathering of the Congress. After Lient-Colonel Otway had made some introductory remarks, the Chief Secretary gave an interesting address. He soon got well into the hearts of people with reminiscences of his esteemed father's career in Newfoundland.

Ideals for Young Folk

Brigadier Bettridge, as hefitted the Territorial Young People's Secre-tary, dealt mainly with the branch of tary, dealt mainly with the brainen or work in which he is engaged, brief-ly detailing The Army's ideals for the spiritual edification and definite conversion of the young folk. The Commissioner, after ex-conversion of the young tolk.

The Commissioner, after expressing his great pleasure at the renewing of old acquaintances which these gatherings made possible, gave an inspiring address, calculated to strengthen the faith, and lead into renewed activity, all who heard his stirring words.

The next public engagement was that of Saturday night, when the sioning of Cadets, and the promo-tion of a number of Officers. For this there gathered a great and interested crowd. An old-time song set the ball An old-time song set the ball rolling, so to speak, and after prayer by Staff-Captain Tumner, for the blessing of God upon the young lives about to he re-dedicated, and placed upon the Altar of Service for placed upon the Altar of Service of the benefit of the dying world, the Commissioner took the reins, and, with his usual able manipulation of with his issual able manipulation affairs, put the young people in a happy mood. As they came down to the front, one by one, to receive their Commissions and Appointments, his fatherly words put them the Commissioner, and in a moment all were attention.

The first name mentioned was that of Commandant Sheard, and he that of Commandant Steard, and the was very heartily acclaimed, then earne Commandant Stickland, Com-mandant Brace, Commandant His-cock, Commandant Brown, and Commandant Higdon. Some of the Commandants are located at other

Then came the Promotions of Ensigns Cole (St. John's III.) and Butler (Triton) to the rank of Adjutant, and Captains M. Saint and C. Pietler to the rank of Ensign.

Some more singing, and then the fray, and gave a very profitable dis-conrse, for the henefit of the Cadets in particular, though it was equally applicable to all and sundry. It had applicable to all and sundry. It had to do with utilizing and cultivating of our individual personality, making it effective in the service of God. The climbing of the ladder of opportunity to success, said the Commissioner, will be commensurate with our knowledge of God, and our holy ambition to succeed—to hit the tarambition to succeed—to hit the tar-get at which we aim. The mark for The Salvation Army Officer is the Salvation of souls; it is to be the sum total of his effort, the Alpha and Omega of his life.

With such words ringing in our ears our meeting concluded, and we went away with increasing faith for the efforts of the coming Sabbath.

On Sunday morning the Citadel was again erowded. "Blessed Lord, in Thee is Refuge" was the opening song, after which the Chief Secreaons, after which the Chief Secre-tary pelitioned the Throne for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit of God.

Ensign Roberts (Hant's Harbour) Growth in Grace

The Commissioner then dealt with the subject of man's state after conversing, pointing out the need for perpetual growing in grace, by the removal of the last remains of sin, and thus preparing the way for the higher life. It was a special season of heart-searching, as was manifested by the fact that seven men and women came to the front. Adjutant Earle (Bonavista) led the prayer meeting, under the direction of the Commissioner.

THE Salvation Soldier must urge in the most carnest manner upon all men alike, whether concerned or meonecrned, the duty of immediate seeking God, at the same time assur-seeking God, at the same time assuring then, that if they will do so, they will be certain to find Him.

The fact that simers are as yet without those religious feelings which would enable them to discharge the duties they owe to God and man, does not relieve them from the obligation to do such things as they have ability to perform. The Salvationist must, therefore, these monther entry on the fore, insist upon their acting on the light they already have, and using the strength they possess, knowing that their so doing will certainly lead to the attainment of both the feelings and ability they need.

Consider God's Claims

Sinuers should consider the claims of God. They are perfectly willing to give due consideration to any claims which men may make upon them, and surely this is the least they can do with respect to the claims of God.

the claims of God.

There are times with all men, when they will admit the reasonableness and jostice of the requirements God makes for their service and love. In seasons of bodily pain or earthly trial, in the face of imor cartiny trail, in the race of im-pending death, or standing by the open grave, men at such times lis-ten to the Divine threatenings and appeals, and will admit that God's claims upon them are reasonable and just, and that they ought to Comply with them and just, and that they ought to comply with them. If then they do admit these claims, the least that sinners can do with regard to them is to consider them. The Salvationist should insist on this consideration. He should demand that they shall find time to sit down, think the aubject carefully out, and make a straightforward and

THE SALVATION SOLDIERS ARMOURY

IThis page section is the special "property" of our Soldiers and Recruits. We particularly urge that all newly-enlisted comrades should carefully study the instruction provided, and also that any one in doubt or difficulty should take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the "Question Book" short so shall not sold the should be sh "Question BOX." Before a Salvation Soldier can effectively discharge the duties of any branch of his work, he must know something of the nature of those duties and the best method of performing them. And one of the principal duties that devolve upon him—if not the chief duty—is that which relates to the ungodly work of around him. This series of papers deals expectally with this.—Ed.]

VII.-WHAT CAN A SINNER DO?

what they will do. The consideration of the subject will ereate leelings, and feelings will lead them to seek God in carnest. Sinners perish because they will not think.

 cause they will not think.
 Sinners can enquire about their duty to God. When pushed into a corner as to the wickedness of their conduct, the ungodly often plead ignorance, and say that there are so many religions that they do not know which is the right one.

Duty to Seek

In such cases the Salvationist should reply, that it is their duty to seek information. If they wanted to go to another town or country, and did not know the direction in which it lay, how they were to get there, what the journey would cost, or how they would fare when they arnow they would fare when they arrived, they would very soon find out all these things, just because they would ask those people who have. For instance, they would get a time. For instance, they would get a time that telest office or go to people who had been at the particular place which they wanted to reach. The Salvationists should treating and the way to obtain it, as an excuse for being treflejous, to act just in the same way. Let them go to the Bible, enquire of Godiy people, go out to the Penitent Farm, and if they really want to know how and it they ready with to know how to get their hearts broken, and their minds enlightened on the subject, they will soon obtain the informa-tion; and more than that—if they minds enlightened on the subject, they will soon obtain the informa-tion: and more than that—if they are sincere, they will soon find God.

Pray for Mcrey

Let people who want to find Sat-vation pray. It is absolutely wisk-ed to tell sinners that they are not to pray for merey. What is prayer but knocking at the door of Heaven, and asking God to tell them, how they can sind their way there? In the Father is better pleased to see, than His prodigal children? Could any one possibly kaock at the door of a mather's house, whom she would more gladly welcome, than her poor, wandering gril? And our willing to answer the crise of brok-Let people who want to find Sat-Heavenly Father is infinitely more willing to answer the cries of broken-hearted sinners, or of those who want to be broken-hearted, than He is to respond to the cold formalities and comparatively feelingness peti-tions of professing Christians. # VIII.—FAITH AND THE USE OF MEANS

1. It must not be taught amongst us that it is contrary to the Will of God that Means should be used for the recovery of the sick.

the recovery of the sick.

2. This is another serious error, and one which is openly propounded by many of those who hold micraken notions upon this subject and to what I have to say with regard to it I ask your most careful attention.

Enquire Carefully

3. In considering this aspect of the subject, I think it will be wise first of all to enquire carefully what first of all to enquish it will be wase first of all to enquish the army takes take its stand with reference to the employment of means in connection with the Prayer of Faith for the healing of the body? Let me show you:—

(a) And first, our position is not that God cannot dispense with means in the accomplishment of His beneficent purposes towards man. He could, no doubt, feed the whole the could, no doubt, feed the whole population of the world, if He chose to do so, without any one having to raise a hand. He could find some other means of doing it than those at present employed, or He could do it without the employment of any means at all. So He could heal His sick people without the use of means, if He saw that it would be best to do so. best to do so.

Wonderful Things

(b) Neither is our position that God has not done wonderful things for His people in the past without the intervention of means or by the employment of unusual and the employment of unusual and extraordinary means. In this way He has sent calamities to their eneme to effect their deliverance; He has the cale of the cale of the army of a blow, in the case of the army of a blow, in the case of the army of sentencies, the has delivered His servants to me prison, as in the case of Peter; and His servants to me prison, as in the case of Peter; in the and of This followers in the Apostolic way the case of the cas

Curative Processes

7(d) It is important also to re-member that the question is not as to the employment of any particu-lar class or character of means. That lar class or character of any particular class or character of means. That is, it is not the rightness and desirability of dectors, or drigs, or any special dectors, or drigs, or any special cut work of a characteristic control of the control of manity, even if others, helonging to the self-seeking class, are reckless of the welfare of their fellows so long as they can profit by them.

4. But that is not the question.
Our discussion is not as to whether Our discussion is not as to whether it is right no wrong to have recourse to physicians or to use drugs, but whether it is right to employ any means at all for the healing of hod-ily sicknesses. And the answer I make to that question is, that the second the property of the pro-tact of the property of the pro-act within a property of the pro-secon likely to alleviate surfering to according to the knowledge we have, seem likely to alleviate suffering in sickness, or to help recovery from il, or to prolong life, is a very seri-ous mistake—a missake that is con-tary to the capaciting of Scripture, of Providence, of Common Sense, of Humanity, and of True Religion And, more than this, it is a mistake which raust, I am satisfied, result in disastrous consequences to those who make it

6. God has laid down this princle of action, and has acted upon it dimself, with very few exceptions, in all life dealings with mankind.

(a) The Redemption of the World (a) The Redemption of the World exprobably the greatest accomplished by Jehovah in the accomplished by Jehovah in the accomplished by Jehovah in the accomplished by the Universe-was effected by the use of means. # Eminently Sensible

Let us say at the onset that Grace. though of tender years, was an eminently sensible little person, and possessed an active and practical mind. As a rule she climbed the stairway in broad daylight, and is also true she made the ar it is also true she made the ascent each evening, though then it was more or less a state occasion, and she was apparalled for her long jour-ney, to the "Land of Nod," and sacotted by her nurse. In those days (or rather nights) she did not know the familiar lines:—

and then (how happy the y after all these years!) the eary legs fell loosely down beneath the hig strong arms to the highest of the old farm, and saven curls neatled on his broad to the high the strong face (the years sould look so then some times) gazed down upon her, Oh, so tenderly. What beautiful memories come to

What beautiful memories come to her now of that climbing, and the times when she was too tired to climb; memories which make the past a veritable hank of blessing apon which to draw cheques of help, and comfort—a Heavenly reserve upon which there can be no

No Dreamer

By what we have said the reader will realize that Grace went up the stairs to sleep. She was no dreamer. Waking or sleeping, she was the child of action. That dear little mother of hern never found her sitting by the window betraying herself by her specees and reciting:

Twinkle, twinkle, little star, liow I wonder what you are.

How I wooder what you are.
Therefore, when we speak of egger movement of the little fact from the ground floor of the old farm tothe topmost storey, it will be understood there was a reason for it, and that there was michief brewing.

Grace went up to see things. It was so jolly up there, and we must not forget her happy-hearted sister, who aways came up smiling in answer to a call of "Siss," and had many a good look out from the upper window. What a view it was!

Six Counties

There were great reaches of Fen Country which stretched seaward and ioland, embraciog six counties. Fer away could be seen the old windmills and the browsing kine, while here and there like silver ribbons, stretched the artificial waterways along which glided the sails of phantom vessels.

.That was the summer from the upper room, but every season and every day of every sca-son had some change to show.

The picture which Grace liked most was the one painted by the well-known artist, Jack Frost, Esq. One day this great painter had ex-celled himself, and Grace went up the old wooden stairway to view the land-and to view the water.

"Oh, Siss," she cried eagerly, "see over yonder!" "Where?" said Siss, Iooking In the wrong direction.

"No, not there—there!"

"O-O-O!" ejaculated Siss.
"Scrumptious, isn't it?" said Grace.

Keen Skaters

Right away over the vast area of dazzling whiteness, where the floods had been, were some black figures fitting bither and thither.

"Stating hitter and thitter.
"Stating," squealed the two girls in a hreath, and with a cry of triumph they raced pell-mell down the old staircase. Both Grace and Siss were keen skaters,
"I never remember when I couldn't skate," says Grace to day, by which the reader will he happy to learn that this story will not end with a hole in the frozen water, and a warning to all and sundry to keep off the ice.

Like a pair of frisky young ponies jnst turned out to grass, Grace and Siss rushed into the pursery to Miss Grave, their governess, crying, "The ice bears, and you didn't tell us! ow we know, why you didn't let see the thermometer! Come on, us see the thermometer! Come on, we're off, stating!"

"No," said Miss Grave, weakly,
"Yes!" Shricked the girls, jumping and dancing for very joy at the prospects before them. "Yes, father said me might when the ice bears, and we know it bears!" By this stood the two young hopefuls stood the two young hopefuls stood the two young hopefuls stood the long the first partial mand, for the long tanger over the crip, glistening snowper over the crip, to bear, there was a lot of skating yesterday, and another hard frost last sight."

"I know! I know! I know!" chiruped Grace, running round like a demented terrier, that had just been unloosed from its chain.

"I know!" (repeated at least wenty times more with sundry jumps and numberless clappings). "We'll go to Horton's."

"Oh, yes; we'll go to Horton's," echoed Siss.

"No, children, you cannot do that; Horton's is four miles by the Great Drain." "Three and a half-and the Great

For some time there has been a constant increase in the price of the cloth used in our Tailoring Department; indeed during the last few months, it has been doubled. Up till now we have refrained from following the rising market, but have given our customers the benefit of the old prices. It is, however, impossible for us to do this any longer. We have, therefore, decided to raise the price of Uniform, but for the present the increase will be very small compared with the large advance in the price of cloth. These new prices go into effect September 1st.
